

In 1816 when Pinkus Brewery opened, the city of Münster, Germany, had 150 breweries. Over the decades, the number of breweries declined - one big factor was probably increasingly better access to clean drinking water. Today, Pinkus is the only remaining brewery in Münster: the great quality of their beer kept them thriving. With the perspective of generations, and looking back to 1816 when every brewery in the world was organic, the Müller family returned to all-organic production in the 1980s, the first brewery of the modern era to do so.

- Pinkus Münster Alt: Pale, golden, hazy; excellent, herbaceous aroma; delicate lightly sour fruit-acid palate; long dry finish with a note of inviting sharpness. The only remaining example of Münster altbier, paler than Dusseldorf's brown altbiers. USDA Certified Organic. 5.1% ABV.
- Pinkus Ur-Pils: "Ur" translates to original or old-school - clean, brilliant gold all-malt lager with dry finish. In Germany, pils lagers are a national heritage. USDA Certified Organic. 5.2% ABV.
